

The God-Universe connection

God is not a hobby or a lifestyle. God is a connection and not an external entity. Part of God is that there is a collective awareness and a collective knowledge base from which we can all tap into.

The human being is a combined effort of the divine energy and the earthly energy. Mankind has lost sight of this divine connection, that is why tapping into this well or connecting with God is not such a natural thing anymore. We all have the ability to reconnect. Better yet to recognize the divine energy within us that connects us with God. We've never really lost our connection. God shines and radiates through us and around us at all times. Most people just can't feel it because man made world has taken the overhand. It takes great miracles and wonders to make a human feel the Divine. Sadly most only feel it when they witness a birth or death.

To reconnect we need to have a clear view of what is God or Divine and what is earth energy.

While on earth in the earthly body, we can not exist one without the other because it's this combination that creates a human being. We all come from God. Therefore, we are God in a way; not in the ego sense of the word but in the collective sense. God is not external, if we deny God, we deny ourselves. We derive from God and we return to God as mostly all religions acknowledge.

We all came with the ability to recognize truth. Throughout history God has given us enough guidelines to live by in the form of different scriptures. Although scriptures were transmitted by men, they were delivered by spiritual beings. Be it human souls or angels or other Godly beings. Transferring the messages clearly for all to hear or read however depends on different aspect of the person receiving them. What time does he live in? What is his perception of the world and how is his way of communicating or bringing across the message. Another issue about scriptures is that they have been misused by people to achieve selfish goals in many ways. And then you have interpretation which leads to many religions. The thing that causes a lot of indifference on earth. Instead of bringing people together it has torn them apart. Reconnection with God is not only about religion. It's about hearing and feeling the truth. Although religion can be a path to truth, religion is manmade so one must always question if the truth is being told. If we make the effort to listening to the message that truly comes from God instead of the earthly words, we'll be more able to feel our way to the truth. We can come closer to one another once we discover that a lot of what people think are opposite believes aren't that opposite. So it's more about finding that Divine connection than about the words being used.

Religion can be a good thing, unless it's used only to pass on doctrines instead of teaching people how to feel God.

As we are all part of a collective we all take water from the same well, only the bucket is different. All knowledge and wisdom is spread out on different levels. It's just a matter of getting to the right level. Same as the plan for mankind. As we grow we see the truth more clearly. To grow we need to peel of what is men made or earthly emotions and ego and see the Divine which we already posses and are. We need to be ready to choose in which world we want to live. One is limited and the other is not. One is light and the other is suffering and only sees wonder occasionally for example when a child is born or someone crosses over.
